

has an unprecedentedly low drop-out percentage, and that is striking, certainly because the weather has become increasingly extreme in the last few years. Important factors in the selection of a type or variety are the location, the size and the soil characteristics in the garden.

Fifty years of cultivation

"I see a sunny future! Rhododendrons are having a massive comeback and are currently extremely fashionable. If my health permits I will certainly continue working at the nursery until 2010. Then I will have done fifty years and I think I can take things a little easier without feeling guilty."

"I am proud of the fact that our rhododendrons came through the first difficult year at our clients in good health. Our nursery has an unprecedentedly low drop-out percentage, and that is striking" (Arnold Claußen)
