

too strange, Van den Berk"

"The urge to innovate is definitely in the family, and that enthusiasm has infected everyone in the company."

(Pieter van den Berk)

company. It is time to give the new generation space. Allowing a fresh breeze to blow through the company is always good for both clients and staff." "Although that breeze has certainly not been bad in recent years", adds Pieter van den Berk. "The fact that we have been sharing knowledge for years and major decisions have been taken by the management team for many years means that we are well prepared for this change."

Buying time

Paulus will turn 64 in 2007. His entire working life has been involved with nature. "I have always enjoyed working in a natural environment", says Paulus. "I always say: people you can tell lots of things, but you can not fool nature. If you are in contact with nature you understand what is and is not possible."